| 9. Profile of the programme                                                                                           | The history department is concerned with introducing students to the various steps in developing historical studies. In the later stages of the course, the curriculum goes in-depth to provide the students with the knowledge and experience to master and control these curricula, helping them to become experts in their specialty. The study system starts in September every academic year according to its university calendar, and it concludes by the end of June. Students must sit seasonal exams and final tests in every class during the four-year coursework. The department provides opportunities for students in multi-disciplinary research and study based on major disciplines to broaden their understanding of production. |
| 10. Programme learning outcomes                                                                                       | The objectives are to prepare students to be qualified teachers in secondary schools. The college provides students with the basic principles for teaching in addition to psychological and educational subjects that deal with each specialization. The College of Education recognizes the importance of the historical sciences as a field to be explored to create future educators who are in tune with changes in the social and educational fabric of our society. Such experts are better able to provide a stimulating teaching environment for their students.                                                                                                                                                                           |
